

[Company name] supports Team Rynkeby in the fight for children with critical illnesses

[Company name] is proud to have entered into a [sponsorship level] sponsorship with Team Rynkeby, who will be cycling to Paris to raise money in favour of children affected by life-threatening diseases.

When Team Rynkeby cycles to Paris this summer to raise money for children with critical illnesses, it will be with the support of [company name].

[Company name] supports the well-known charity cycling team with a [platinum / gold / silver / bronze / team] sponsorship, and thus sends [size of sponsorship] to Team Rynkeby's collection for children with critical illnesses.

[Write a quote from the company where you can describe in your own words how the sponsorship fits in with your values and why you choose to support a cause that helps children with critical illnesses and their families], says [name of employee], [title] at [company name].

Efforts that make a difference

Solvejg Lauridsen, General Manager of the Team Rynkeby Foundation, expresses her gratitude for the massive support the project receives year after year:

"We are deeply touched by the support we receive from both private individuals and companies like [company name]. This massive support is essential for us to continue our mission and make a real difference to children and families facing unspeakable hardship. With more teams participating than ever, we hope to set another new fundraising record and give even more children a better future," says Solvejg Lauridsen.

This year, Team Rynkeby consists of 68 teams from eight European countries and one international team.

Since its inception in 2002, Team Rynkeby has raised over 100 million euros.